

Summer 2024 Course Offerings with Weekly Time Commitment

Based on the number of credits you earn for a course, there are guidelines for the minimum number of hours you are expected to spend each week completing work for that course. For a face-to-face class, the time commitment includes attending lecture as well as doing homework outside of class time (reading assignments, studying, note taking, assignments, hands-on lab work, and quizzes/tests). For an online class, the time commitment includes online activities equivalent to lecture and, also, your homework (reading assignments, studying, note taking, assignments, hands-on lab work, and quizzes/tests).

Summer sessions are shorter than a standard semester, but you are still required to do the same amount of work. The chart below shows the weekly time commitment for each summer INFO course.
